Built on a lava bed, the North is characterized by 18 holes of rolling terrain punctuated by Kiawe (mesquite) forests. A 230-acre protected archaeological district lies on the northern boundary of the golf course. No.17, a par three tucked into a natural lava amphitheatre, is the resort's signature hole and a favourite "I was here" photo spot. This course has become one of the most popular tournament venues on the Island.

These picturesque lakes come into play on 12 of the holes, not only adding to the course's aesthetic appeal but also serving a vital environmental purpose by capturing storm run-off from the surrounding terrain.
